

Appendix: Examples of Men's Adventure Nazisploitation

Not a men's adventure magazine, but a possible genre precursor. Hangman Comics #3. (June 1942). Cover penciled and inked by Harry Lucey.

"Chained Nudes in Hitler's Laboratory of Agony," Men Today, vol. 3, no. 4 (May 1962)

"Soft Maidens for the Monster's Devil Fish." Men Today, vol. 3, no. 2. (February 1963).

Man's Adventure, vol. 4, no. 5 (March 1963)

"Soft Flesh for the Nazis Fanged Doom." World of Men, vol. 2, no. 5 (December 1964).

"Our Ship Was Our Coffin." Man's Adventure. Vol. 8, no. 7. (May 1967).

"Vile Secrets of Hitler's Hideous Torture Rites." Men Today, vol. 9, no. 2 (March 1970).

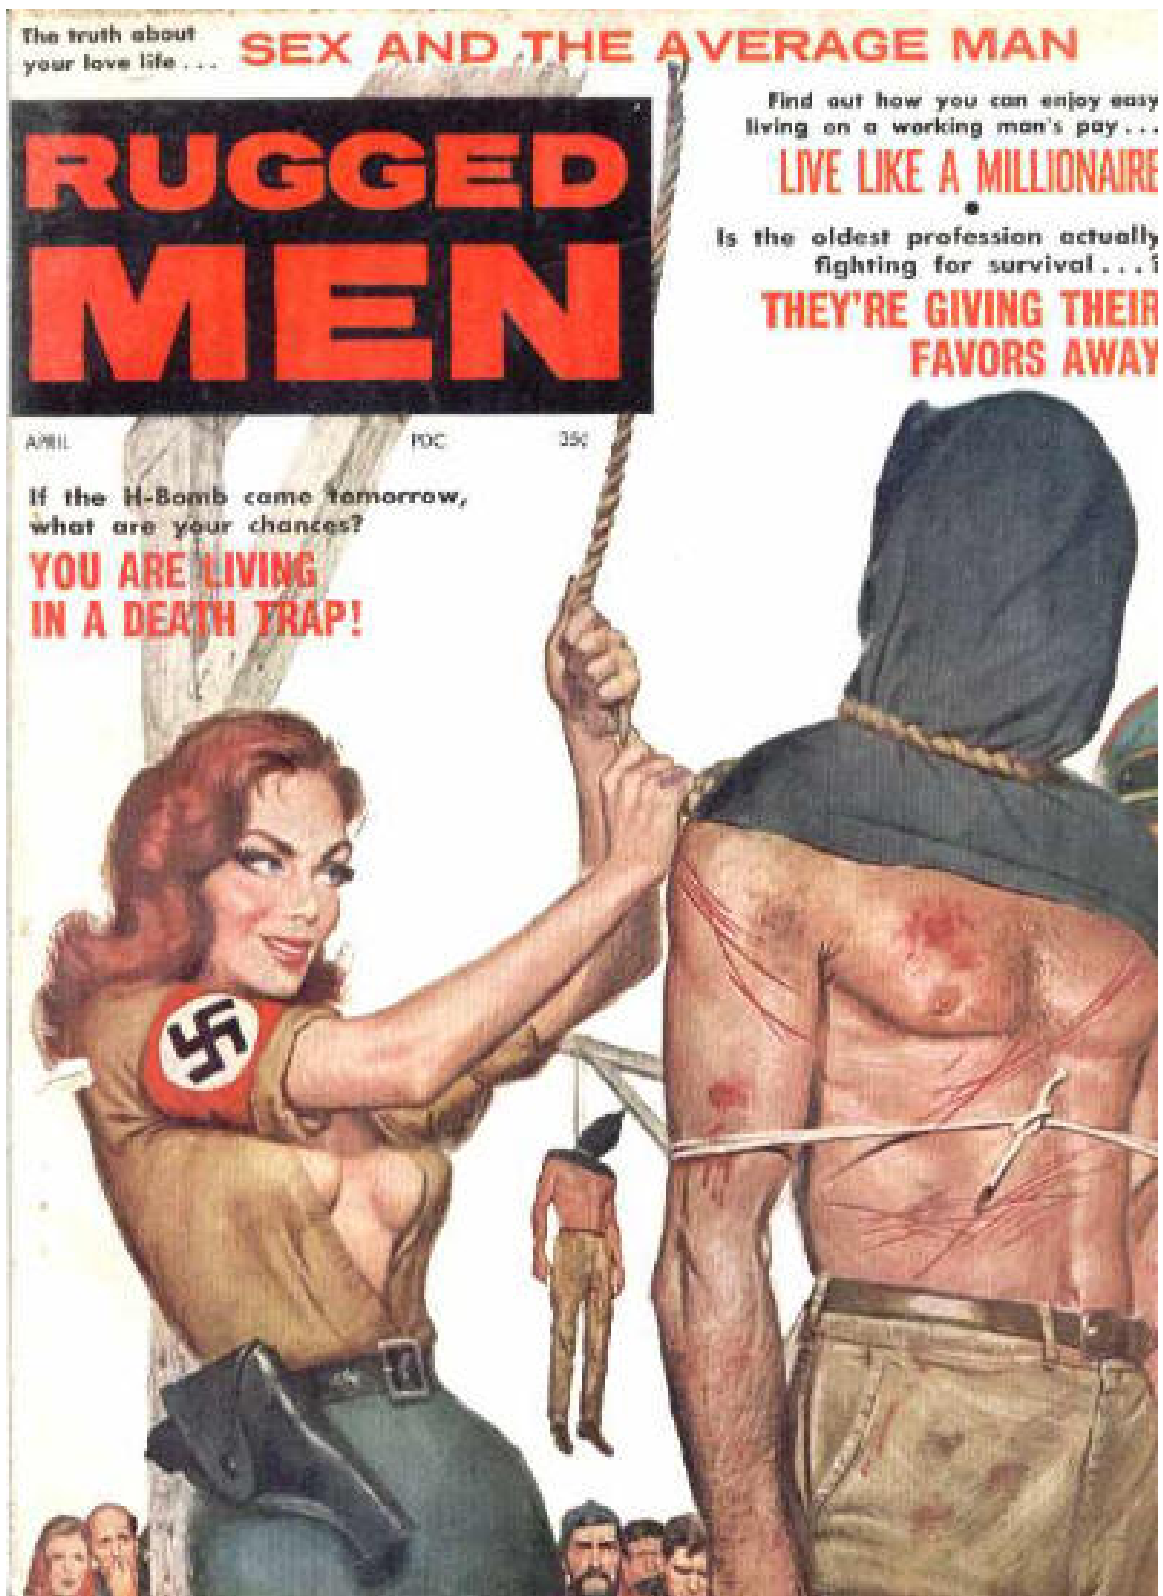

"Bring out the Bound Nudes of Horror House." Man's Book Periodical, vol 11, no. 6 (December 1972).

Undated art attributed to Men's Fate Magazine.

And finally, something a little more Ilsa-like. Cover of Rugged Men, vol. 2, no. 12 (April 1961), painting by Mel Crair.